

Exhibiting PAIN

Using creativity to communicate persistent physical pain

Supervisors: Emerita Prof. Rose Barbour, Dr Caroline Holland, Dr Joan Simons.

Autobiographical representations of life with persistent physical pain are being exhibited online using a 'closed' Facebook group and a blogging site.

Multi-modal methods will be applied in the analysis of data. This will be used to show how different audiences interpret and respond to the works. The implications for the communication of persistent pain will be considered.

Displayed here are a selection of works from the galleries. These have been numbered and their titles removed. What do you think the title is/or should be? Please add the number and your suggestion to the line below using the comment cards provided. You are also welcome to share your own drawing or description of pain by attaching it to the line.

Please visit:
Exhibitingpain.wordpress.com
and share your responses using the Visitor Feedback Form

Also Exhibiting Pain on Facebook